The Building of a Landmark Known as "Turtle Rock"

Al Bissett, was born Allister Randolph Bissett, in Reno, Nev. on June 23, 1920. He grew up in Salinas, Cal. After graduation from high school, he moved to San Francisco where he worked as a parts man and automotive machinist.

In 1958, he, along with his brother Cliff Bissett, and their brother-in-law, Gene McClain, went in together and bought 240 acres in Capell Valley. (A later survey increased the acreage to 308 acres.) Al pitched a tent beside Capell Creek in June of 1958, which began his life at Lake Berryessa.

Barbara Erichson was born in Walla Walla, Wash. Her father was a missionary doctor and his work took them all over the world. Places like Scotland, South Africa, The Philippines, China. She attended nursing school and graduated in 1946.

Al and Barbara met at a barbecue at Lake Berryessa. They were married in 1959. Al had already started a house, which now is the Turtle Rock Motel office. The original house was made of tin. No electricity, but running water. Al said when he put in the plumbing he inadvertently hooked up the hot water pipe to the toilet. Quite a novelty having a steam toilet.

He built a work shop from materials he acquired from discarded buildings at an airport. From that shop he did boat and automotive repairs, and using the shop as a base, started building their boat sheds. All the buildings were put together with nuts and bolts and Barbara told me Al would go through the motions of putting the buildings together in his sleep.

The first four units of the motel and the bar and service station were started in 1962. They leased the business (bar and gas station) to Romaro Jolly. Over the years it was run by several people including Jim Haines and Gracie Shaut.

I Think I'll Riot or Protest

During the last couple of years, it seems as though our country's policies are written and rewritten influenced by mob mentality. Certain segments of our population are getting a strong message that all you have to do to get your way is riot.

When the Rodney King verdict was announced they had a riot. A jury of twelve people, by due process, made that decision. The business owners in L.A., had no control of the verdict, but they were looted, burned and beaten. Millions of dollars lost because a mob didn't get their way through threats and intimidation. There were a lot of innocent, law abiding people who were hurt during that riot, but the focus was on the mob. What could we do to rebuild and help the poor angry mob. I saw a lot of laughing faces on this mob that was running out of burning stores with T.V.'s, VCR's, Stereo's, clothing, jewelry, and thousands of other articles. This wasn't an angry mob. This was hoodlums and thieves who wanted something for nothing.

When one man went on a hunger strike because he didn't like our policy on Haitian refugees, our President of the United States gave in to him. I don't like income taxes. Would he abolish income taxes if I went on a hunger strike?

When Prop 187 had overwhelming support the people against it threatened massive disobedience. They walked out of schools and jobs to protest. They tried to close down colleges, cause disturbances in several cities, attacked some innocent bystanders. No doubt a lot of illegal aliens in those crowds.

In a country where majority rules, it seems that mob rule is becoming the norm. Throw away the ballot box. Whoever can form the largest and most destructive mob can make the rules.

When a hundred or more students closed down the entrance to the U.C. Davis administration offices, the media didn't mention the thousands of students that were in class. They focused on the mob.

Now it's time for other people to riot. Over too high taxes, the massive welfare give-away, the TV's, telephones, computers in prison cells, against high cost of homes, food, medicine, and the very air we breath.

I'm sick and tired of being blamed for what happened in this country years ago. I never owned a slave, bought a slave or sold a slave. I never rode with the Cavalry to take land from the Indians. I never bought Chinese into this country to work for slave labor. I never put one Japanese citizen in an internment camp. I never fought the Mexicans and ran them out of California. I've never raised my hand against anyone because of race, creed or color, or blamed them because I live within the poverty level.

So give it a rest. Instead of blaming everyone for your heritage, take responsibility for yourself and your actions. If you don't like the country LEAVE. If you want to change it VOTE.

I think the country is getting fed up with mob mentality and riots.

Letter to the Editor

Letter to the Editor:
11-12-94. In regards to Prop 187:

I do not understand why the people of Calif. even take the time and effort to get out and vote in this past election. Especially when it takes only one person to try and block something that the vast majority of voters passed. What are our rights as a citizen. It would seem to me that the voters on Prop. 187 had a reason or it would not have passed. As the politicians stated before he election, that if you are here in Calif. legally you need not worry, but if you are not, you better worry.

Now could it be true that probably 90% of the students and adults who held their demonstrations prior to and after the election are here illegally.

Think about it. No need to vote, as it looks like your vote does not count anyway.

Many with held upon request. Thank You.

As a result of the recent storms, our cold mornings and beautiful afternoons make for a great day of fishing at Lake Berryessa.

The lake becomes very peaceful and shimmers like glass this time of the year. Not many boats out and those that are on the lake are people fishing.

I spent most of the week out-of-town attending a reunion in Las Vegas with friends whom I worked with prior to retiring. They came from various areas of the U.S.A. and we had not seen each other for 4 or 5 years.

What a great time! Upon returning home, I spent the next few days at Berryessa doing what I love doing, "FISHING"....

Trout fishing has been good in between storms and when the winds aren't too heavy. Fish are in the top 5 to 10 ft. of water. Drifting minnows and long-lining with threaded minnows or night crawlers seems to be the favorite technique used by most fishermen. Remember, if you come up early dress very warm as it is very cold in the mornings. Don't forget your thermos of coffee or hot soup!

Markley Cove Fishing Report

by — Claude Davis

Today was a real fun day for Siony Sespene. It was her fourth fishing experience. She landed a big crappie while I only managed two.

We arrived at Markley Cove about 2pm and at 4pm our day was complete. I was the net person. Yes, I was humiliated by a brand new angler. I do take the credit for getting her started. She is "gung ho" now and ready to try again.

The bad weather has made fishing a bit slow from the reports I get, yet a lot of anglers consider the trying worth while.

I am sorry I can not fill you in on any more fishing. If the weather stabilizes I am sure fishing will be good.

Bass, catfish, crappie and trout are all being caught but not as many as when the weather was better. — Claude Davis

Fishing at Spanish Flat

with - Ed Johnston

The fishing here at Lake Berryessa is pretty good for trout and catfish.

The trout are on the surface. Some anglers are having good luck fishing from shore in the coves. Most are using minnows under a bobber at 3-6ft.

Some are throwing lures and having success. Mostly silver lures such as silver phoebe, silver/blue kastmaster, silver blue fox, or silver w/red tip triple teaser. For those of you that like to troll use half fast silver/gold hammered flashers and a threaded minnow or nightcrawler. Also some anglers are using lures (use the same as for above). For trollers the best spots are the Dam, Neither cove, the mouth of the narrows, or the mouth of Skiers cove. For the shore anglers try Spanish Flat Marina and Launch Ramp cove's, Neither cove, or Oak Shores.

The catfishing is pretty good in the coves using chicken liver, nightcrawlers, dead minnows, or anchovies. Try fishing in about 12 to 15 feet of water in just about any cove. The top spots that I've heard are Kelly cove, Neither cove, Spanish Flat Launch and Marina coves. Jimmy Comer of Fairfield nailed 5 fat cats from 3 to 5 lbs. He was fishing in our marina cove using chicken liver. Nice catch Jimmy!!!!

The Bass fishing has slowed down this week. I've seen a few small mouth coming out of the narrows off the rocky points trolling with nightcrawlers.

Be sure to stop at the marina to discuss all the technics for catching trout at Lake Berryessa. Or call for information about reservations for camping or about our fishing boat rentals. (707) 966-7700.

See Ya, — Eddy

Happy Birthdays & Anniversaries

♦ By-Nancy Courtney

Nov. 19th

Happy birthday to Alice Joyce.

Nov. 20th

Celebrating her birthday is Linda Velasco of Putah Creek Park and Napa. I am sure Rockie will make your day very special. Also celebrating his 8th birthday today is Ronnie Dufault. Have a great day.

Nov. 21-22-23

No birthdays or anniversaries on these days

Nov. 24th

Happy birthday to Jeanie Moskowitz Rapenecker and Mary Ellen Westfall. Don't know where Mary Ellen is now but have a good day, wherever you are.

Celebrating their 38th anniversary today are a great couple Paul and Jo Wyman. Hope you have many, many more.

Nov. 25th

A very happy birthday to Don Moskowitz of Steele Canyon, son of Harold and Joan.

A very happy birthday to a Grand Lady, Elsie Plunkett, who has done so much for Lake Berryessa. Have a great birthday party.

Barbara loved the song "Tomorrow Mountain" sung by Lena Horne, so that's the name she gave her new home. When they leased the business to Floyd Turtle, the name took and became "Turtle Rock."

Eventually Al and Barbara finished the motel and trailer park. They chose a site with a spectacular view, high above Turtle Rock for their homesite. Acquiring a house in Napa scheduled for demolition, they dismantled it and with the help of Clint Pridmore, painstakingly brought it to their new homesite in five pieces. After driving up their steep driveway, I can imagine what a next to impossible job that must have been.

In 1968, the Bissetts were approached by a promotion group. They wanted to bring big name entertainers for concerts to Lake Berryessa. They needed a place to perform so the Bissetts agreed to build what later was known as Berryessa Bowl. After tons of concrete and a promotion campaign sponsored by Pepsi, they held their first concert. It was a huge success. They had headliners like Santana and the Grateful Dead contracted for future events, when the "County Fathers" decided it would attract the wrong kind of crowd. After a lengthy court battle, the Bissetts won the suit, but the momentum was gone. The promoters lost their backers and the project was scrapped.

In 1977 the Motel-Bar and Berryessa Bowl was sold to Bob and Joy Dunlap. After operating the business for several years, Bob and Joy sold the Motel to Ed and Inez Crosby, the present owners, and the bar and Berryessa Bowl to Pete and Joan Leung.

Working for Kaiser Steel for many years, Al was forced to retire in 1982, due to work related injuries. Barbara retired in 1981 after 35 years of nursing. Since retiring they have traveled abroad to Australia and New Zealand. They have driven their motor home to Alaska and went to the Worlds Fair in Canada. They have gone on many hunting trips with their family and friends. They are enjoying their children. Kathryn, Bob and Richie, who blessed them with five grandchildren. Al still puts in a garden every year and Barbara showed off her landscaping ability, and explained the history behind all her unique rocks she has collected over the years.

From their warm, comfortable home, high on Tomorrow Mountain, they can look out over Capell Valley and enjoy their well deserved retiring years. Al and Barbara should take great satisfaction in knowing that their years of happiness and hard work have created a bit of History and a well known landmark at Lake Berryessa.

Larry Wilson - Greasy

All of his friends were there and he was just like a kid again at his first birthday party.

Honey Mustard Salad Dressing

Low-Fat, high nutrient salad:

Spinach with Strawberries and honey salad dressing. It's hard to say enough good things about spinach, since it more than any other green leafy vegetable, except for broccoli and kale, is full of components that protect cells in numerous ways. Strawberries also contain disease fighting antioxidants. Recipe follows:

1 bunch fresh spinach, cleaned & trimmed of stems, wash & dry excess water.

2 tblsp. balsamic vinegar
2 tblsp rice vinegar

1½ tblsp of honey or to taste

2 tsp Dijon Mustard, salt & pepper

1 c. thickly sliced strawberries

1 tblsp toasted sesame seeds (optional)

½ small red onion thinly sliced.

Tear spinach in bite sized pieces and place in a bowl. In a separate bowl whisk together vinegar's, honey, mustard, salt & pepper, then add to spinach and toss lightly. Add strawberries, sesame seeds and onions and again toss lightly.

- by Jane Dahl

As we grow older (don't you just love that phrase?), our memories of years past become more precious and our friendship sweeter.

This Thanksgiving husband Don and I are hosting a two family reunion — our family, and the Lingel family from Southern California. We will be celebrating, with thanksgiving, forty years of friendship and happy memories.

When we moved to Tujunga in 1954, we happened to buy the house next-door to Bob and Lorraine Lingel. Our two sons were five and six, their son about a year old.

In the eight years following, we happily watched two baby daughters added to their family (to be honest, I jealously watched), spent vacations together, baby-sat each other's kids, played bridge, barbecued one hundred chickens and as many pounds of hamburger, bought the same aluminum Christmas trees, and thought we would be neighbors forever. And in a sense we still are.

Although the Lingels moved to New Mexico, then back to Southern California, and we to Northern California, we have spent time together every year. And this Thanksgiving will be a special time because all sixteen of us, including our kids' spouses and children, will be together for the first time in many years. Two will be flying in from San Diego, and one from Gresham, Oregon. Others will be arriving by camper and car from Agoura Hills, Newbury Park, Benicia, and Oakley.

As part of our celebration, we will show videos of the movie films taken of the two families, beginning in 1956. Also, each of the nine original Tujunga members has written an account of a favorite Lingel/DAHL memory. These have been reproduced and combined in a Memory Booklet, the cover of which is a collage of snapshots of both families.

What is it that connects us with certain people that neither time, distance, nor the busy flow of everyday life can disconnect? One thing, of course, is fate or good luck or whatever you want to call it — you just happen to be neighbors or go to the same school or work in the same office. But, of course, there's much more to it than that, such as mutual respect, compatible attitudes, common interests, and a sense of communion that clicks between personalities.

I'm sure you have special friends you will give special thanks for this Thanksgiving. We all have much to be thankful for, and friends are certainly in the top ten on anyone's list.

Did I mention that we'll all be staying together for four days and nights? Hmmmmmm, wonder if we'll make it through our next year of friendship as smoothly as we made it through the first forty?

Window on Wild life

by - Bette Maron

We live in a special place, surrounded by wild neighbors — well, semi-wild. The deer just stand and watch my dog and me pass, now, before going back to grazing flowers and shrubs. Many of us are drawn to them, putting out food and drink so they will return often and we can enjoy their presence. but we've made them dependent. Who'll tell them, "Oh, didn't you hear? The Smiths went on a cruise this month," when the usual table scraps don't appear.

It's hard not to want to bond with them. I found the same problem when I started volunteering this last summer at a wildlife sanctuary, the one over in Suisun, under the auspices of the Suisun Marsh Natural History Association. One of the first things you are told is not to get too close to the animals. Don't stand and stare, talk to them, handle them, coo over them. Our mandate is to rehabilitate injured and orphaned wildlife. Their destiny is to be released back to the wild. Our duty is to help them remain wild, wary of humans.

Yet, when I arrived, some 40 baby birds, all with their beaks raised skyward at the same time, chirped, "Feed me! Feed me!" And one became conditioned to push softened kibbles down gaping throats. As unlikely as it may seem, I became particularly captivated by the baby crows — big, clumsy babies. I watched them change from infants to toddlers. They had such personality, it was difficult not to bond with them. Finally, in mid-August, when they had become teenagers, they were released, and most of them flew away as a flock. But one, perhaps because of a bad shoulder, or perhaps because it had imprinted on us, was found walking the streets the next morning. It was brought back to the sanctuary. It'll probably never be able to be released to the wild.

Most of the work at the sanctuary takes place in the spring when the babies are born or hatched. That's when they really have need of reliable volunteers. However, they'll accept volunteers all year, because in the winter months there's more time to gain the necessary background on providing for these wild creatures.

And there's always a coterie of permanent residents — wild creatures who'll never be able to be returned to the wild. For instance, there's the beautiful coyote that was raised on the end of a chain as a pet for the first couple years of its life. It is used to confinement. If it were ever released, it would head straight for humans. And it would be shot. Therefore, it is doomed to a lifetime of confinement because of misplaced human intervention when it was a baby. Which is also the likely story for a great horned owl that lives there, too. It is a beauty, except it's head is at a permanent tilt — probably the effects of being raised by humans, on the wrong diet as a chick. It will never be able to hunt for itself. And there are hummingbirds brought in with brain damage, possibly poisoned by drinking fermented sugar water from our feeders. The solution should be changed every few days.

The wildlife center's job is to try and mitigate the problems we humans bring to wildlife. there is something satisfying in sharing our space with them, but we have to allow them their space, if we want them to survive.

Parents & Concerned Citizens of Lake Berryessa

The Parent Club of Capell Valley Elementary School is trying to improve our school grounds. We have no structured parking lot and with over 90 students attending Capell Valley School, we are concerned for the safety of our students. We would like to construct a driveway with a drop-off zone, a separate parking area for teachers & parents and put in sidewalks with a student crosswalk. We are asking the people of Lake Berryessa and Circle Oaks to come together as a community and donate time and/or materials so that we may assure the safety of our school children.

Can you help?

Please call Yvonne Gilliland at 966-0648 by Dec. 1, 1994, as we will begin construction during the Christmas Break

Please don't wait, safety is the issue.

To Forgive:

One reason we may have trouble keeping friends is that we have a hard time working through conflicts and forgiving.

Friends are going to mess up, but it's better to have their friendship than to be bitter. After all, our friends know our faults and shortcomings and they still accept us. Your best friend: Angel

Pets: Princess:

The poor homeless puppy appeared 3 weeks ago at the door of Gretchen and Wacky Jacks with nothing but a red bow on. The next morning they took her shopping to the best doggie store they could find, (Petco)

When you visit Princesses home you might wonder who's in control. she has everything she could ever want; toys and even her own mattress in her favorite box. How long do you think she's going to fit in that box? An update in months to come. - By Shirl

"True Blue" Good Sport

Best sport of the year - Jim Bray - paying off a bet to a Dallas Cowboys fan for last year's Dallas-49'er game, wins The Best Sport Award. After several days and nights of worrying, he dutifully laid on the pool table at The Corners Saloon, which he owns, and had certain parts of his anatomy spray painted "Blue".

This pay off was done to a standing-room only crowd. His only consolation was the 49'er win over Dallas a few minutes earlier.

You are a "True Blue" good sport Jim. Sorry about the enamel paint!
